

Dear Ian Callahan,

It has been brought to our attention by the Student Guild that they are losing space for the 8-ball project as well as other student common space.

The 8 ball project is an award winning project that recycles used computers using volunteer student labour and then sends them to learning institutions and non-government organisation doing valuable community development work overseas. The active citizenship shown by these students should be commended and supported. The students of Murdoch University are unique in developing such a practical overseas aid project. This successful and growing project deserves adequate space and a suitable area should be found that plans for the expansion of this important initiative.

We would urge you to you find a speedy resolution to this issue so that this valuable international aid work can continue.
